Mr. Chairman Baucus, Mr. Ranking Member Hatch, and members of the Committee:

I am Conrad Teitell, volunteer legal counsel for the American Council on Gift Annuities (ACGA), and submit this statement for the record on its behalf.

Let’s win this one for the giver. Make permanent now the expired law that allows generous individuals 70½ or older to contribute up to $100,000 annually from their IRAs directly to public charities. Although transfers from IRAs to charities from the expired law saved taxes for some givers, those charitable individuals would have been far better off financially by not making gifts.

Actually, the real winners are the Americans who are served by our nation’s charities.

The federal government is also a winner. Americans making gifts to charity provide funds to meet needs that in many cases would otherwise be a function of government.

The American Council on Gift Annuities (ACGA) (formerly the Committee on Gift Annuities) was formed in 1927, is an IRC §501(c)(3) organization described in IRC §170(b)(1)(A)(vi). ACGA’s officers, board of directors and its legal counsel are all unpaid volunteers. ACGA is sponsored by over 1,000 social welfare charities, health organizations, environmental organizations, colleges, universities, religious organizations and other charities. The Mission of ACGA is to “actively promote responsible philanthropy through actuarially sound charitable gift annuity rate recommendations, quality training opportunities and the advocacy of appropriate consumer protection." We ask Congress to now permanently extend and expand the expired Charitable IRA.

Question. Why are we asking Congress to act on the Charitable IRA now even though it may not act on all the other expired provisions until the very end of this year — or even next year?

“Others” is the answer. Over 100 years ago, General William Booth, the founder of The Salvation Army, was asked what one word describes the work of the Army. He replied, “Others.”

The Charitable IRA benefits others. There can be bipartisan agreement on this. The other expired provisions, no matter how worthy, benefit businesses and some classes of individual taxpayers.

The remainder of this statement describes the expired Charitable IRA and a proposed expansion to include transfers for life-income arrangements.

Background — the off-again-on-again-off-again law that allowed tax-free IRA rollovers for direct (outright) transfers to specified categories of charitable organizations. The law, enacted in 2006, expired a few times, but was extended (sometimes retroactively). It expired again on December 31, 2011. The Charitable IRA is an important source of support for America’s charities. Being off-again-on-again-off-again is confusing and reduces the number of new donors and repeat annual donors. The law should be made permanent.

The expired 2011 law in a nutshell. An individual age 70½ or older can make outright (direct) charitable gifts from an IRA — including required minimum distributions — of up to $100,000 to public charities (other than donor-advised funds and supporting organizations) and not have to report the IRA distributions as taxable income on his or her federal income tax return. Most private foundations are not eligible donees, but private operating and pass-through (conduit) foundations are. The tax-free rollover is for outright gifts only, not life-income gifts. A charitable deduction is not allowable for the amount transferred to charity from an IRA, but the donor is not taxable on the amount transferred — up to $100,000. Not being taxable on income that would otherwise be taxable is the equivalent of a charitable deduction.

The IRA/charitable rollover is unique in that it gives tax incentives to the two-thirds of taxpayers who don’t itemize but take the standard deduction. Although no charitable deduction is allowable for IRA/charitable rollovers, the rollovers aren’t taxable. No tax on otherwise taxable income is the equivalent of a charitable deduction for the two-thirds of taxpayers who take the standard deduction.

Mr. Chairman Baucus, at the October 18, 2011 hearing, Tax Reform Options — Incentives for Charitable Giving, you stated: “Most Americans aren’t able to receive tax benefits from the charitable deductions since they don’t itemize. Less than one-third of taxpayers itemized their deductions last year.”

Making the expired Charitable IRA permanent would continue to provide charitable tax incentives for nonitemizers.

The Charitable IRA should be expanded to include life-income charitable gifts — gifts that pay income to the donor for life, with a remainder to a qualified charity. This would be at no revenue loss to the government because annual payments to the donor would be fully taxable at ordinary income tax rates.

The Senate now has before it a bipartisan bill co-sponsored by three Senate Finance Committee members that would make the IRA/charitable rollover permanent and expand it to include life-income charitable gifts.

The Public Good IRA Rollover Act of 2011 was introduced by Senator Charles Schumer (D-NY) and Senator Olympia Snowe (R-ME) on March 10, 2011 with co-sponsors: Sherrod Brown (D-OH), Richard Burr (R-NC), Kirsten Gillibrand (D-NY), Tim Johnson (D-SD), John Kerry (D-MA), Patrick Leahy (D-VT), Carl Levin (D-MI), Mark Pryor (D-AR).

The Public Good IRA Rollover Act has been introduced in every Congress over a number of years. The original co-sponsors were Senator Byron Dorgan (D-ND) and Senator Olympia Snowe (R-ME).

The Public Good IRA Rollover Act — in a nutshell. It would allow tax-free IRA rollovers for both outright and life-income gifts and with no annual ceiling. And it includes rollovers to all public charities and all private foundations.

If it is deemed that the absence of annual ceilings on the amount that can be rolled over outright annually would make this bill too costly at this time and if there are concerns about including donor advised funds, supporting organizations and private foundations as qualified donees, we ask the Senate Finance Committee to report out ACGA’s proposed All-American Charitable IRA Rollover.

The All-American Charitable IRA Rollover Act would:

(draft language is at the end of this statement)

• Make permanent the expired law (the provision that was in effect for years 2006 through 2011) that allowed individuals age 70½ or older to make direct (outright) gifts from an IRA of up to $100,000 per year to public charities (other than donor advised funds and supporting organizations) and to private operating and passthrough (conduit) foundations without having to report the IRA distributions as taxable income on their federal income tax returns.

• Expand current law to authorize tax-free IRA rollovers for gifts that benefit charities and provide taxable retirement income for the donors. The qualified charities would be the same donees authorized under the expired law for direct rollovers. There would be a $500,000 annual ceiling for life-income rollovers and donors must be age 59½ or older.

• The types of life-income plans assure that the annual taxable payments will be equal to (or greater than) what an individual would receive under the required minimum distribution rules had he or she kept the funds in the IRA instead of rolling them over for a life-income plan. The life income paid from the rollover cannot be assigned.

• Under the authorized life-income plans, the IRA owner will be taxable on income received at ordinary income tax rates. Because the payouts are 5% or more, there will be more income paid with the charitable plans than under the normal payouts of the minimum required distribution rules. The higher payout amounts will produce greater tax revenue for the Treasury.

The expired outright (direct) IRA/charitable rollover has resulted in millions of dollars of charitable gifts that would not otherwise have been made. It helps the Americans served by our nation’s charities — provides for housing assistance, feeding the hungry, education, medical services and thousands of other services that American citizens need. The life-income rollover would greatly increase those gifts.

Why would IRA owners not just give outright to charity (a direct gift) from an IRA as provided under the expired law? Many IRA owners want to make charitable gifts, but also need retirement income. The life-income IRA rollover is an excellent way for donors of average resources to combine a charitable gift with retirement income. Many charities have donors who are “standing by” and wish to make life-income charitable gifts from their IRAs.

This is an All-American Charitable IRA Rollover. It allows all Americans with IRAs — not just those with large stock portfolios — who meet the minimum age requirements, to benefit charities. And since it encourages non-itemizers (over 65% of taxpayers) as well as itemizers, it is truly All-American.

Senate Finance Committee member Snowe was the original co-sponsor of the Public Good IRA Rollover Act. On November 14, 2007, the Senate Finance Committee held a hearing titled: “Federal Estate Tax — Uncertainty in Planning Under the Current Law.” I was one of the four invited witnesses.
Among the written questions asked of me by Committee members after the hearing, was this question from Senator Snowe and my response:

Senator Snowe

Mr. Teitell, thank you so much for your reference in your written testimony to the Public Good IRA Rollover Act of 2007 (S. 819) that I introduced with Senator Byron Dorgan earlier this year. I agree with you that it is a critical incentive for both donors and charities.

Mr. Teitell, focusing on the planned-giving component of this legislation through which an individual could donate to a charity and receive life income that is taxable, could you please comment on how this provision would promote charitable donations while simultaneously reducing individuals’ present-law estate tax liabilities and addressing Congress’ concern that individuals do not outlive their retirement savings?

Conrad Teitell

Senator Snowe, many individuals would like to give part or all of their IRAs outright to charity, but they need the retirement income from their IRAs. Allowing them to roll over their IRAs at age 59½ or older to a life-income plan that would pay the individual (and a spouse, if desired) income for life (through a charitable gift annuity, charitable remainder unitrust or annuity trust, pooled income fund gift) would enable them to provide retirement income for life and make a charitable commitment. The charities could plan on receiving the gift after the life interest terminates.

A life-income rollover is truly an All-American IRA/Charitable Rollover. It would encourage philanthropy by all Americans—not just those who can afford to part with their assets now and not just those who itemize their deductions on their tax returns.

The ability to roll over an IRA to charity directly—or for a life-income plan—gives charitable tax incentives to the approximately two-thirds of taxpayers who take the standard deduction. Not being taxed on income that would otherwise be taxed (withdrawal from an IRA) is the equivalent of a charitable deduction.

The IRA assets rolled over for a life-income plan would not be included in the taxpayer’s estate at death. However, the vast majority of the rollover gifts would come from individuals who have no estate tax concerns.

The life-income rollover shouldn’t cost the government anything because the payments received from the life-income plans would be fully taxable—just as if the payments were received from the original IRA custodian or administrator. The big difference is that the nation’s charities and the people they serve will be greatly benefitted.

Rolling over an IRA for a charity’s life-income plan is not giving away the assets in the plan. The individual continues to receive income for life—just as if she or he had kept the IRA assets with the current custodian or administrator.

Senator Snowe, as you know the IRA/charitable rollover law that allowed tax-free rollovers for direct (outright) rollovers to charity for 2006 and 2007 wasn’t in an extenders’ bill at the end of 2007. When the Senate this year (soon, I hope) considers extending the just-expired IRA/charitable rollover provision, I hope that it will add the life-income component of the Public Good IRA Rollover Act of 2007 (S. 819).

As volunteer legal counsel to the American Council on Gift Annuities (an organization of over 1200 charities receiving support through life-income plans), I convey ACGA’s thanks for your being an initial co-sponsor of S. 819 with Senator Byron Dorgan—not only in this Congress, but also several years ago in an earlier Congress.

The bill that you and Senator Dorgan initiated now has wide bipartisan co-sponsorship in both the Senate and the House—including many members of the Finance and Ways and Means Committees.

To sum up: The IRA/charitable life-income rollover is not a revenue drainer and it doesn’t decrease retirement savings—just puts an IRA in a different container. I hope that Congress agrees that passage should be a no-brainer.

To sum up. Decreased support from federal, state and local governments and increased burdens on charities make this the time to enact a permanent Charitable IRA and expand it to include life-income charitable gifts. Charities need the funds to do their vital work now.

Please act now.

There is a tide in the affairs of men
Which taken at the flood, leads to fortune,
Omitted, all the voyage of their life
Is bound in shallows and in miseries.
On such a full sea are we now afloat,
And we must take the current where it serves,
Or lose our ventures.

All-American Charitable IRA Rollover Act of 2012 — Draft Bill

To amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to expand tax-free distributions from individual retirement accounts to include rollovers for charitable life-income plans for charitable purposes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “All-American Charitable IRA Rollover Act of 2012.”

(D) APPLICATION OF SECTION 72

Notwithstanding section 72, in determining the extent to which a distribution is a qualified charitable distribution, the entire amount of the distribution shall be treated as includable in gross income without regard to subparagraph (A) to the extent that such amount does not exceed the aggregate amount which would have been so includable if all amounts in all individual retirement plans of the individual were distributed during such taxable year and all such plans were treated as one contract for purposes of determining under section 72 the aggregate amount which would have been so includable. Proper adjustments shall be made in applying section 72 to other distributions in such taxable year and subsequent taxable years.

(E) SPLIT-INTEREST ENTITY DEFINED

(G) DETERMINING DEDUCTION UNDER SECTION 170

Qualified charitable distributions shall not be taken into account in determining the deduction under section 170.
